A Big Threat: Global Warming

Scientists warn people about serious effects of global warming on our world. They say that temperatures rise every year. As a result, people in many countries will experience drought. If people don't stop wasting water resources, there will be serious water shortages.

Factories and transportation use fossil fuels, so air pollution will become a serious problem. If air pollution increases, ecosystems and wildlife will die. So, scientists suggest people use public transportation, save energy, and recycle to fight against air pollution. If authorities act early, they will reduce damage and will protect the environment

Complete the sentences according to the information in the text above.

- Scientists are worried about the serious effects of on the world.
- If people waste water resources, will happen.
- Air pollution will increase because factories and transportation use
- People should, and if they want to stop air pollution.
